Dear Mrs. President,

We are an Iranian organization in Diaspora, trying to get the attention of the democratic countries' leaders to the plight of the people of Iran, who have been living under a tyrannical regime that demeans and suppresses Iranian citizens, especially women.

Iran is an ancient nation whose cultural belief has been: "Good thoughts, Good words, and Good deeds." It was also an Iranian king Cyrus The Great, who wrote the first proclamation of human rights in the year of 539 BCE.

Mrs. President, as you are aware, Reza Pahlavi's name is the only one chanted in slogans at demonstrations across the country. It's legitimated to have our Prince Reza Pahlavi back to make Iran Great Again.

We expect the support of the western Democracies in removing the anti-Iranian regime that has also made Middle East a war zone.

Most Respectfully

Assadollah Nasre-Esfahani (former minister)
